Great Smoky Mountains
National Park

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

Few places in North America sustain a greater variety of life than the Great Smoky Mountains. The forests, streams, and meadows here support more than 100 types of native trees, some 60 kinds of fish, some 1,500 flowering plants, more than 240 bird species, and an array of mammals that includes black bear, squirrel, and gray fox.

Such abundance is a function of topography and climate. Varying elevations provide endless combinations of moisture, temperature, wind, sunlight, and soil types. Most plant species of eastern North America can find a niche somewhere among the slopes and coves of the Smokies. And in a few cases, the region has nurtured species all its own; some plants and animals here are found nowhere else.

Pink lady's slipper

The aptly named slimy salamander is one of more than 80 salamander species found in the Great Smoky Mountains. The Smokies have one of the most diverse salamander populations on earth.

Tennessee Artists and the Historic Arts & Crafts Community

The Historic Great Smoky Arts & Crafts Community, founded in 1937 is the nation's largest organization of independent artisans. Close to a hundred shops, studios, galleries, and inviting little eating establishments line an eight mile loop along Route 321, Buckhorn Road, and Glades Road. Most of the little Tennessee artists' shops and studios are clustered here and there along a winding road that follows the contours of the hills.

The Tennessee artists and crafters of the Great Smoky Arts & Crafts Community are a very talented and diverse group. You'll be amazed at their creative endeavors. As you take in a Gatlinburg art gallery or artisan shop, you will see gorgeous quilts, old-fashioned straw brooms with hand carved handles, exquisitely woven baskets, beautiful jewelry, handdipped scented candles, Victorian ceramic pitchers, pottery, dulcimers, stuffed bears, leather vests, and much more. It is a perfect complement to your Gatlinburg shopping experience. You will marvel at the talent of the many painters who paint such wonderful scenes of the mountains. These original, handmade treasures make great gifts or decorations for your home.

Many of the cars are the creations of George Barris, who has created more famous Hollywood movie & TV cars than anyone. On display are some of his finest creations, such as The Ghostbusters Ecto-1, The Munsters Drag-u-la, 'General Lee' from The Dukes of Hazard and The Beverly Hillbillies Jalopy. Our exhibits range from such blockbuster hit movies as Batman Returns, Gone in 60 Seconds, Charlie's Angels and The Fast and the Furious to entertainment icons as Elvis, the Beach Boys and, new this year, Dolly Parton's Cadillac.

Trails Forever is a partnership program between Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the Friends of the Smokies.

Through a challenge grant from the Aslan foundation, fundraising efforts and donations, this program provides for high priority trail rehabilitation – like the work being completed on this trail.

Trails Forever provides volunteers an opportunity to work alongside a highly-skilled Park Service Trail Crew.

Please be cautious when entering the worksite area!

Bob Was Here

Great Smoky Mountains
National Park
National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

Bob visited Great Smoky Mountains National Park and especially enjoyed the historic buildings. He liked them so much, he wrote his name on a wall. He did not seem to care that these historic structures are protected by law as part of our nation's heritage, just like the Statue of Liberty or a President's home.

By writing his name, Bob committed a crime. A visitor reported his vandalism to a park ranger, who gave Bob a ticket. He paid a $100 fine. If his case had gone to court, he could have spent six months in jail and been fined up to $5000.

If you wish to leave your mark on this park, please do it in a positive way by helping to protect and preserve the natural and historic resources.

3- Pollution

3- Pollution...AIR POLLUTION

People come to Clingmans Dome to experience the 360-degree view, but how does the view today compare to centuries ago? We really don't know, but we do know that haze, largely caused by air pollution, can greatly diminish your view.

3- Pollution...AIR POLLUTION

3- Pollution...AIR POLLUTION

Notice the forest that surrounds this tower. This is a spruce-fir forest, comprised mostly of red spruce (Picea rubens) and Fraser fir (Abies fraseri). It is a forest under stress. The dead trees you see are Fraser fir, victims of a European insect. Another threat, with far broader effects, comes from the air.

4- Acid Rain

4- Acid Rain

This park receives the highest sulfur and nitrogen deposits—from acid precipitation—found in any national park. It is most severe at higher elevations. The average acidity of rain and snow here is 5–10 times greater than natural precipitation. This acid fallout damages park soils, streams, plants, and animals.

5- Wildlife Habitat Threatened

Hot dogs. Fried chicken. Watermelon rinds. Some of the most lethal substances known to bears.

Here in The Smoky Mountains, we ask that you dispose of your garbage properly, and never ever feed the bears. Why? Because fed bears cease to look for food in the wild and almost always become problem animals that have to be removed from the park or put to death. The good news is that we can prevent most of these tragedies just by doing the following:

- (1) Never leave food or garbage outside. Dispose of it only in bearproof cans or dumpsters.
- (2) Don't leave pet food or bird seed outside where bears can get to it. Store it indoors.
- (3) Don't pour cooking grease or throw things such as food scraps outside on the ground.
- (4) Clean up all outdoor areas where you cooked or ate as soon as you have finished.

Did You Kill This Bear?

This young bear attacked a visitor, inflicting a bite wound to the visitor's foot. Rangers captured the bear and sadly, were forced to euthanize her.

What Happened?

Visitors threw garbage by the side of the trail—apple cores, candy wrappers, soda bottles. The tantalizing smells of food entice bears to these areas, where they find small bits of food mixed with the scent of humans. By leaving garbage, visitors teach bears that humans are a source of food.

Over time, “habituated” bears lose their fear of humans and may begin approaching visitors in search of food. Visitors allowed this bear to approach them too closely. Fearless and unpredictable, eventually she bit a visitor.

What Can You Do:

- Dispose of garbage and food scraps in bear proof garbage containers or take it with you.
- Do not feed wildlife. Feeding a bear guarantees its demise!
- Do not approach within 50 yards or any distance that disturbs a bear.
- Do not allow bears to approach you. (See recommendations below.)
- If you see another visitor breaking these rules, or encounter a bear on a trail, please call (865) 436-1230 or stop at a Visitor Center to report it.

Bears in the park are wild and their behavior is sometimes unpredictable. Attacks on humans can inflict serious injuries and death. If you see a bear, do not approach it and do not allow it to approach you! Don't run, but slowly back away, watching the bear. Try to increase the distance between you and the bear. Act aggressively and try to intimidate the bear. Shout at it and clap your hands. Act together as a group if you have companions. Throw rocks at the bear or use a deterrent such as a stout stick. Don't run and don't turn away from the bear.

If the bear physically attacks you, fight back aggressively with any available object—the bear may consider you as prey!

A photo of the bear immediately prior to the attack and garbage thrown along the trail.

Each year thousands of backpackers
Climb the Great Smokey Mountains...
Nature's Peace flows into them
as Sunshine flows into Trees;
the Winds blow their freshness into them...
and their Cares drop off like Autumn Leaves.

Leave Only Your Cares

Many backcountry campers have visited the Smokies and left behind more than their cars. They have left blackened soil, trampled vegetation, and trash and food scraps that harm wildlife.

Park rangers have designated camping sites in the backcountry to isolate damage to specific areas. Proper use of campfires, camping only on ground that has been previously used, and special care with horses will help keep the park natural and inspiring.

Pack out what you pack in and don't leave your toilet waste near the campsite or near a water source.

Leave No Trace. Backcountry campers should follow low-impact techniques to minimize damage.

Choose to avoid campfires. Please use a candle lantern and a cooking stove.

Campfires Leave an Ugly Trace

- Campfires cause more damage to ecosystems than any other camping activity.
- Camping near fire sites when old ones become well established: the area of light, blackened soil, causing irreversible site erosion, and by creating an open area.
- Caution! Burned trampled vegetation.
- Carrying stoves with hatchets and users delicate and life items, and is illegal.
- Campfire heat burns tree roots, slowly killing trees.
- Food odor and residue in campfire sites attract bears and rodents, and rodents attract poisonous snakes.

Avoid Campfire Impact

- Use stoves for cooking.
- Choose to not have a campfire, or build a small fire, and only in an official, established fire ring.
- Use firewood that is already down and small enough to break by hand, thus eliminating the need for a saw or hatchet.
- Clean out ashes when the fire is out and scatter them far away from camp. Remove all trash and pack it out.

Golf in the Mountains

Welcome to Gatlinburg Golf Course

August '09 Golf Digest rates Gatlinburg as Tennessee's Best Muny Course

Reserve Online Here!

Avid fans know that golfing isn't just a sport, it's a way of life! While in Gatlinburg and the Smokies, indulge in your favorite pastime at the area's most uniquely designed course. From the challenging layout and emerald fairways to beautifully wooded landscapes and well-manicured greens, you'll remember this picturesque setting in the heart of the Great Smoky Mountains.

In prime condition after a half-million dollar renovation to several holes during 2007, Gatlinburg course provides unique golfing excitement in a spectacular mountain setting.

Gatlinburg Golf Course is open year-round with modern facilities, fully equipped pro shop and food services area. This beautiful 18-hole course was designed by noted golf course architect William Langford. In 1993 and again in 2007, it underwent major renovations by Bob Cupp & Associates of Atlanta.

Today, the completely rebuilt greens and reworked fairways are better than ever. The course offers the well-seasoned golfer as well as the beginner a challenge on every hole, while its scenic beauty is unsurpassed.
