So, it has happened again. For my philosophy class we had to do these stupid group presentations. Which, of course, means that I get stuck doing all the work—getting all the information, making the powerpoint, writing up the handouts. And then these jerks have the nerve to ask what they should say. I'm so mad. Number 1, I hate group projects in the first place. I like to do things my way, and I don't want your input, Random Girl who never comes to class and Annoying Guy that missed all our group meetings. Number 2, I really don't have time to explain it to you.

Anyway, I told the professor that Random Girl and Annoying Guy didn't do anything. Let's just say, that 'A' isn't for Annoying...

Hey Jeff, that stinks. I'm sorry that happened 2 you—you're so nice! You totally don't deserve that ☹️ Anyway, just wanted to let you know that your tutoring paid off! I got a A on my Psych paper. Thanks, Jeff---hang in there ☺️ When our Frosh Buddies outing, btw? Where are you taking us??? I heard rumors of pizza.

Pat

Chill out, Jeff. I can't believe you talked to the prof.—they weren't that bad. I mean Random Girl did make us cookies...LOL. You are waaaaay too intense about this class anyway. Remember when you totally bailed on me for our anatomy midterm study group. You def did not make me cookies to make up for it, if I remember correctly.

Lex86

Oh Jeff and his hatred of group work. LOL. Remember how back in high school you petitioned the school council to eliminate school projects. I'll never forget Mrs. Trawinski's face when you actually went to Parent Council about it. A budding politician even then I guess. Anyway, hope no more group projects come your way anytime soon.

It'sPeteRRR

Classic Jeff. I pity people who work with you. J/K. Lab partners for LIFE (btw, I picked up this week's assignment...should we all meet in Jessie's room to divide up the work for this week?)

Subject: Student Center Renovations

Hey Guys,

The campus vote on whether or not there should be renovations to increase student club space in the Student Center is tomorrow. Please come out and vote—it's really important. You guys know I've been working on this for months now, after all the meetings we've had with student groups, I'm sure it's a really good idea. It'll make the Student Center a great place to come hang out (did I mention renovations also add a café). If you want more information about the renovations themselves, including plans for solar panels (solar panels plus a café, people), I've made a factsheet you can get from your RAs. Thanks to everyone who got up at the crack of dawn last week to put up posters in the Quad. This really means a lot to me, and I think it is really important that the Student Council knows how much you guys care about what we do!

FCSC PREZ Liz

Thanks for posting this, Jeff. And thanks for sending out the Fakebook invites to vote, postering, making the fact sheet. I couldn't have done it without you! You rock! See you at Student Council.

Lacrosse44

I thought you thought the renovations were a bad idea...what changed??

☞ Jeff says: Ted, You are right. I first thought that it would be bad idea b/c the center had to be closed for December. But, after meeting with all these groups and talking with other students, I changed my mind. I never voted against it though...I just sent an email around the dorm talking about my concerns (Check the Ryman Hall Wiki).

Mahj~is~dancin

Thanks, Jeff...you are such a great rep for us! I'll be sure to vote tomorrow. Also, I got your email. Yes, the dance team did apply for space in the new center—thanks for reminding me to do that too;)

SammieG

I thought the Council voted against solar panels???

☞ Jeff says: I'll have to get back to you on that, Sammie...pretty sure it passed, Liz?

☞ FCSC Prez Liz says: Jeff, you should prob. take that down. Sammie, it hasn't been decided yet, but the board votes on it next week.

☞ Jeff says: Sorry☹ I'll get it right next time...

Subject: Your Dirty Laundry...

...is leaking out of your room into the common room again. Pat, Pat, Pat my boy, there's a little something I like to call cleanliness. Now I'll admit, I have been known from time to time to eat your treat from home and leave some dishes in the sink. But for serious, Pat, your laundry is like a biohazard in our living room. I never knew socks could be so foul. Does Leanna need to come over and give you another laundry tutorial? That was hilarious ("Leanna, I don't think the red socks can go in there...NOOO!). I guess it's true love if she can handle those socks. Anyway, I threw the extra common room laundry into the washer. You totally owe me, it was worse then when we found that rotten orange behind the trash can (I still think it was yours...). I'm definitely deducting one more cookie from your next package from home. Roommate good times.

Comments:

Pat

Hahaha. That was your orange, and I'll swear by it till I die. Anyway, thanks for throwing it in. Leanna says thanks too. She says she's never recovered from turning everything pink. Good thing you were there...after all my clothes were pink. By the way, where's your rent check for this month? I really need you to mail it by tomorrow.

CJROCKS

This is too good—Mr. Neat Freak living with Patrick 'I'm not sure how the chicken wings ended up behind the couch, Mom' Jenkins. Too hilarious. Don't take this the wrong way, but I would have never the two of you would get along. Anyway, your place is great guys! Even with socks seeping out of Pat's room. (Jeff, thanks for lending me your mop). <3

Favorite Jeff quote—"Um, I'm not sure if that's frosting or mold."
☞ Jeff says: Haha. Yeah, not my best roommate moment. At least you didn't eat it.
☞ Pat says: No I did. Thnks, guys.

Angie78

I don't remember you doing my laundry...and I'm your sister!
